

Should I lease a solar energy system?

Under a solar lease, you won't own your solar energy system, but you'll still benefit from its electricity. A leased solar panel system can make selling your home more difficult because the next owner may not want to take over your lease payments.

Why are solar & battery storage lease rates increasing?

The increasing demand for land suitable for solar and battery storage projects has driven up lease rates in recent years, especially because of the incentives offered by the IRA Renewable Energy. As the industry expands, competition for land is intensifying, particularly in regions with favorable solar and wind resources.

Why should you lease a site for a battery energy storage system?

Land is the most important resource for the development of battery energy storage systems. Several factors must be considered when considering the leasing of a site for a BESS project, some of the most important being: The size of the land required for a BESS project depends on the capacity of the battery system.

What is a solar lease?

You can think of a solar lease like a car lease: It's a form of third-party ownership (TPO) where you don't own the product that you're paying for. Under a solar lease, this third-party owner (e.g., a solar company) installs solar panels on your property and then sells you the electricity produced at a predetermined monthly rate.

How much does a Green Mountain Power energy storage lease cost?

The basic premise of the energy storage lease pilot program is pretty simple - you pay Green Mountain Power to lease two batteries for 10 years, and in exchange, you have two batteries in your home to use during power outages. You can choose between two payment options: monthly installments of $65 per month, or one upfront payment of $6,500.

Are solar leases worth it?

Solar leases cover the costs of installing a solar energy system and help lower your electric bills, but they can cause more trouble than they're worth, which is why it's important to do your research before signing any contract.
